Explain Available and Current Balance.

Available Balance reflects any pending transactions that have not yet posted to your account. Pending transactions include Point of Sale preauthorized debit or credit holds or ACH debits or credits. It also reflects any deposits, withdrawals or transfers on your account that have not undergone the nightly processing cycle. All transactions that go through the nightly processing cycle post to the account and reflect in your Current Balance. Point of Sale transactions may appear to only reflect in the Available Balance and not in the Current Balance even after the nightly processing cycle due to holds placed by merchants on your account. Point of Sale transactions do not reflect in the Current Balance until the merchant settles the transactions with the Bank. The usual hold period for any Point of Sale transaction is three (3) days. When the merchant settles the transaction using the preauthorized code the hold drops and the transaction reflects in the Current Balance. If the merchant does not settle the Point of Sale transaction within three (3) days the hold drops from your account and does not reflect in your Available or Current Balance.

How do I Print my History/Transactions?

Once you have your transactions displayed, right-click with your mouse and then select print.

Utilizing older browsers may result in disabled functionality or limited access to services. Updating your browser versions will help your online banking pages execute properly.

When is my Transfer Available?

Funds transferred to a deposit account prior to 11:00 p.m. EST on any business day will appear in your available balance and may be used to pay transactions. Transfers initiated after 11:00 pm EST will appear in your available balance on the next business day.
